Secret Meetings of the House Banking and Currency Committee.

Hon. H. R. Hulburd, Comptroller of the Currency, the Subject of Investigation—A Bank Examiner's Report Suppressed Ten Months to Allow a Rotten National Bank to Go On.

The House Committee on Banking and Currency are investigating the official conduct of the Hon. H. R. Hulburd, comptroller of the Currency. The members of the committee are sworn to secrecy. and the investigation is being so secretly conducted that, with the exception of one Herald correspondent, all the representatives of the press in Washing-ton are ignorant of the matter, excepting the gen-eral well-known fact that some sort of an inves-portant part of the evidence, and, as 1 am not orn to secrecy, the substance of it will be found further on; but justice to members of the commit-tee requires me to state that no one of them has ed me even a hint of what has thus far transpired in their secret sessions. The evidence before the committee and here given to the public was honestly obtained through the superior enterprise of the HERALD.

of Ohio, the present Comptroller of the Currency, succeeded Hon. Freeman Clarke, of New York, who med July 25, 1866. The importance of the office In question is not generally understood. The laws of Congress assign to the Comptroller of the Cur-rency the duty of overseeing the organization of the one thousand eight hunared and odd national banks in the United States, and of winding them up and appointing receivers in cases of violations of the National Currency act, besides other important and responsible functions. Such duties, to be well performed, demand a knowledge of finance, judicial be said of a man when not only one, but all these great requisites for a useful public officer are wanting in him? The Comptroiler of the Currency is to a great extent the arbitrator between the stockder, the depositor and the government, and he should know how to regulate their conflicting interests by a just use of his immense power. THE EVIDENCE now before the Banking or Currency Committee or on the road thither, shows that in the summer of 1866 Mr. John Bull, a National Bank Examiner, was ordered by the Comptroller of the Currency to examine, among other banks, the Tennessee National Bank of Memphis. Accordingly on the 24th of ugust he made an examination of that bank and forwarded a full written report of his examination to the then acting Comptroller Hulburd. In tha report Mr. Buil informed the acting Comptroller that the records of the bank were incomplete; that none of the persons acting as directors were legally sucn; that although the anthorized capital of the was $100,000, but $40,000 had actually paid in, notwithstanding the fact that the officers of the bank had certified ctually paid in, notwithstanding the fact that the officers of the bank had certified the capital to have all been paid in, such certification being a matter of record in Mr. Hulburd's Bureau; that stock notes for the basance were need by the bank, most of which had been renewed and some of which were then overdue, and that several of such nominal stockholders whose notes were overdue assured. Mr. Buil that the notes had been given by them at the request of Mr. Rutter, President of the bank, he promising that they should never be called on to pay the notes.

On the books of the bank, as stated by Mr. Bull, appeared as assets $74,950, "United States bonds and securities on hand." He found only a part of these securities actually on hand, and insurance and railroad stock to the amount of $15,000 included in that item. Among the assets of the bank was counted $27,355 of their own circulating notes. Yet only $2,2500 this sum claimed as assets was actually on hand. The balance had been taken away by the President, Mr. Rutter, then absent. The excuse offered by the cashier for this irregularity was that Mr. Rutter had taken them with him to sign.

Among the cash items reported were several memorandum checks of President Rutter, which mere ha fact a loan to him, amounting to some $20,000, without interest.

Also among the resources of the bank was counted $618,250 due from the National Bank of the Metropolis, of Washington (now in the hands of a receiver), which corresponds exactly with the hability of the Tennessee National Bank of the State of Tennessee deposited in Tennessee National Bank of the State of Tennessee deposited in Tennessee National Bank of the State of Tennessee deposited in Tennessee National Bank of the State of Tennessee deposited in Tennessee National Bank of the State of Tennessee deposited in Tennessee National Hank to the State of Tennessee deposited in Tennessee National Bank of the State of Tennessee deposited in Tennessee National Bank of the State of Tennessee Legislature which investigated that certain prompt measures be taken to save the government and the State of Tennessee from loss; among other things, that a withdrawal of government deposits be made, and that revenue and other officers in that section be instructed to deposit public funds in some other depository. Mr. Rutter, President of the bank, followed Mr. Bull to Washington and succeeded in inducing Acting Comperciver Hubburd to take no action on Examiner Bull's report, alleging that the bad condition of the bank was the result of mismanagement by the cashier. At the request of Rutter Mr. Hubburd selected another cashier (a personal friend); and when, during the following spring, ten months after Examiner Bull made his report, Mr. Hubburd was compelled to put the bank into the hands of a receiver, the person chosen as such receiver was the gentleman he had selected as cashier.

receiver was the gentleman he had selected as cashier.

CRIMINAL NEGLIGENCE.

Here was a full and authentic account of the rotten condition of this bank placed before the Comptroller by an authorized agent of the government, and calling for a prompt winding up of the institution. Yet what action is taken by him? He piggon-holed the examiner's report, delayed the appointment of a receiver and remained silent as to the mismanagement of the bank ien long months.

Why were the recommendations of Examiner Bull not acted upon? Could it have been made blainer to any sensible person that prompt and effective action was necessary in closing the bank in order to prevent further losses? The greater portion of the Tennessee School Fund was lost to the State through the failure of this bank.

It is impossible to see how this official report of Examiner Bull and Comptroller Huiburd's delay in acting upon it can be explained away or white-washed.

Here was a national bank officially reported by a washed.

Here was a national bank officially reported by a fegular bank examiner to be in the most rotten condition possible; yet acting comptroiler fluiburd suppresses the report by permitting it to sleep ten long months in the pigeon holes of his office until the bank went down of its own weight of management. But this Tennessee bank case is only one of many. MHE RECENT NATIONAL BANK FAILURES IN NEW

There is a large amount of evidence in relation to the recent national bank failures in New York that has not been made public, and which will receive the attention of the Banking and Currency Committee in due season. The Callender matter has not been half looked into, and the evidence in feiation to, the "expenses in Washington" of certain broken bank receivers may be tooked for with interest. a the cylindric in relation to the capetal ashington" of certain broken bank receivers looked for with interest. THE BANKING AND CURRENCY COMMITTEE

THE BANKING AND CURRENCY COMMITTEE have sent for persons and papers and will continue the examination to-morrow morning. Among the witnesses to be examined is Mr. John Bull, late Examiner of National Banks. The members of the committee are as yet in ignorance of many of the details here given, so that the HERALD'S readers will receive the earliest information upon this alimportant subject. It is too late now to suppress the evidence. The truth is before the people.

About half-past one o'clock yesterday morning John Healy, a plumber, nineteen years of age, re-siding at 446 Eighth avenue, effected an entrance to siding at 446 Eighth avenue, effected an entrance to the liquor saloon of Edward Early, at 479 Seventh avenue, by means of forcing open the front door. Mr. Early, who occupies the second floor of the premises, hearing a noise, proceeded down stairs. As he was entering the front door Healy pulled the bott from the side door and glided into the street. This exit being discovered by Early he was pursued and captured by Officer Brennan, of the Twentyminth precinct, who found two bunches of cigars in his pocket. Upon returning to the store ten boxes of cigars were found packed up near the door ready for removal. The prisoner upon being conveyed before Justice Ledwith, at Jefferson Market yesterday morning, pleaden guilty to the charge and was locked up in default of $1,000 bail, to appear for trial.

On 'Change to-day, wheat was strong and more active. The cotton market was heavy and lower.

MONEY UNSETTLED.

Money was quoted 5 a 6 per cent among the government dealers, and 6 a 7 per cent among the stock brokers, until late in the afternoon, when it was active at 7 per cent in one portion of the street, and offered freely at that rate in another.

Prime double name paper was quoted at 7 a 8 per cent discount.

The foreign exchange market was firm, with an advance in sight sterling to 109%, owing to a large inquiry for this class of bills in connection with sales of American securities for London account. sales of American securities for London account. The following were the quotations at the close of business:—Stering, sixty days, commercial, 108%; do., good to prime bankers', 109 a 109%; do., short sight, 109% a 109%; Paris, sixty days, 5.32% a 5.27%; do., short sight, 5.23% a 5.22%; Prussian thalers, 71% a 72%; Antwerp, 5.26% a 5.23%; Switzeriand, 5.26% a 5.23%; Hamburg, 35% a 36; Amsterdam, 40% a 41; Frankfort, 40% a 41%; Reemen, 78 a 78%. Bremen, 78 a 78%. GOLD FEVERISH-110% A 110%.

The gold market was feverish and its average price was on the whole lower as compared with the previous day, reflecting a wider disbelief in the chances of a war with England. The first early sales at 110¼ were due to a cable telegram showing a sudden improvement this morning in the London prices of consols and United States bonds, the former recovering to 92 against 91% on Thursday, while the new five per cents recovered to 88½ (from 86½) and the five-twenties were steady. A Washington despatch, denying that there was any foundation for the ramor that the government had decided to accept the fixed sum of $30,000,000, or any amount, in liquidation of the Alabama claims, turned the price up again; and as everything in London soon after was reported falling again, gold snot up to 110%. Consols went off to 91% and five-twenties to 91—the latter the lowest price yet made in the current agitation - but, while the figures were only slightly improved upon when business wound up in London, gold went off to 110%, and closed heavy at 110%. There was, in fact, during all this afternoon, a great deal of disparity between the London quotations for United States securities and the New York prices of governments and gold, referable to the difficulty of speculative sales of bonds in this market, where the borrowing demand is already stringent, in consequence of the numerous sales by the foreign bankers earner in the present excite-ment. London may be lower than New York, but of what advantage is the difference in prices to a broker here, who cannot make his deliveries in less than fitteen days, and cannot find a market for any amount of bonds except deliverable in the regular way? The course of the gold market is shown in

The immense amount of capital waiting to go into government bonds was clearly demonstrated in the to buy being given without reference to the career of the foreign quotations; so that between the heavy sales of the foreign pankers, for both English and German account, and the purchases on domestic account, the dealings in governments were on an unusually large and active scale. The gold bearing issues were all strong, the home demand being in excess of the foreign supply, at least as far as the latter could be made new fives more particulariv. The currency sixes naturally sympathized with the depreciation of paper money inferred in the higher price of gold and were lower. The following were the closing quotations:—United States currency sixes, 113% a 114; do. sixes, 1881, registered, 114 a of the Tennessee National Bank to the State of Tennessee of $618,260. It was, in fact, the same money, being a part of the school fund of the State of Tennessee deposited in Tennessee National Bank of Memphis and then loaned, without proper security, to the Bank of the Metropoils. This school und is clearly traced from the state authorities, in whose hands it should have remained, through the channel indicated in a report of a committee of the Tennessee Legislature which investigated the mater. The facts evolved were smothered by the friends of certain Congressmen, who were supposed to have been interested.

MR. EXAMINER BULL RECOMMENDED

that certain prompt measures be taken to save the government and the State of Tennessee from loss:

SOUTHERN SECURITIES RAMPANT. The speculation in the Southern State bonds remarkably strong as to occasion an advance in prices in the midst of the weakness, depression and prices in the midst of the weakness, depression and excitement on the Stock Exchange, is one of the anomalies of the day. This afternoon the new South Carolinas ran up to 33½, Tennessees to 65½, and Virginia consols to 58. It is not often that one branch of the Stock Exchange is thus buoyant when the general feeling is such depression as has followed the misunderstanding about the Alabama claims. A broker familiar with these bonds in explaining the rise says, and we give his opinion for what it is worth:—It is "due to the fact, which is gradually secoming apparent to many of our shrewd capital ists, that the Southern States are producing large and profitable crops and are rapidly recuperating their financial condition. The Southern people themselves, aware of their increasing prosperity, are very desirous that their increasing prosperity, are very desirous that their rulers should administer their finances with more credit to their several States. None wish for repudiation. They know too well the effect or Mississippi's fatal step, the record of which the citizens of that State would gladly obliterate. They ear-nestly desire the prompt payment of interest on nestly desire the prompt payment of interest on their State debts and the redemption of their credit from the stain and stigma imposed by 'carpet-bag' rulers, whose machinations and intrigues have brought the fair fame of their commonwealths into disrepute." So much for a special view of the matter. The advance in Virginias is credited to the introduction in the Legislature of a bill to undo all that has been done toward stopping funding and interest payments and to place the State's finances where they were a few months ago. The Governor of South Carolina has submitted a proposition to the Legislature to fund the January interest, just described upper and resume interest on the desired. faulted upon, and resume interest on the April issues, which would take only $45,000 of currency (the fancy gold coin interest provision being done away with). The State would then have until July to meet the larger instalment of interest, which could be provided by the collection meantime of the taxes. The Governor further says the net debt of the State is only $12,000,000. The following of the State is only $12,000,000. The following were the closing quotations for the Southern list:—

STOCES STEADY, DULL AND STRONG. The stock market was dull and very steady, the general average of fluctuations in prices barely ex-ceeding % per cent, outside of Pacific Mail, which tion at 57%. There was a moderate display of strength also, particularly in Northwestern and Wabash, over which Mr. Daniel Drew stood jealously on guard, a thistle to the "bears," to whom he might have offered the warning of the Scotch national motto—"Nemo me impune laces-str." #### JERSEY'S "LEAR" CASE.

Another Scene in the New Brunswick Court-The Prisoner Baxter Sentenced-What the Whiteheads Say.

The Willetts-Yates-Whitehead, or "Lear," case was revived in the New Brunswick Oyer and Terminer yesterday, before Judge Scudder, when that jurist disposed of the motion to arrest judgment in a man-ner that is sure to excite considerable discussion in and out of legal circles. There was a large crowd of people in court. The prisoner, James Baxter, alias Ramplin, was placed before the bar, and during the proceedings manifested extreme disquiet. The motion to arrest judgment was denied, and then the prisoner's counsel put forward a second motion to allow Baxter to withdraw his piea of guilty. This, too, was denied, and amid almost breathless stillness the presiding Judge proceeded to sentence Baxter to

TWO YEARS IN STATE'S PRISON, the extreme penalty of the law. Much amazement was caused by the result of the case, and the question is uppermost in people's minds now Baxter could be really considered guilty of a crim e wnich the jury had declared four other persons

Baxter could be really considered guilty of a crim e which the jury had declared four other persons indicted with him not guilty of. It is the general belief that Baxter is a dangerous scamp, and as he plead guilty no one considers that he has not been dealt fairly with; but it is still believed that others beside him deserve equal punishment.

A few days since a Herald reporter drove over to washington village from New Brunswick, with a view to finding out some singular reported discrepancies in the course pursued by the old man, Samuel Whitehead. He was confined to his room and constantly attended by Mr. Henry Gordon, the ear trumpeter. Since the days of his appearance in Court he had been completely prostrated. Mr. Gordon if it was really true that the old gentleman exonerated two daughters and had given them money since the indictment, He said it was not; that the money and bonds, some forty thousaifd dollars, had all been handed over prior to the preliminary proceedings; that he was greatly annoyed at the turn the trial had taken in releasing all but lixiter, and that he (the old man) had repeatedly expressed his firm belief that Baxter had really told the truth. It was all nonsense to say that he had any feeting for his daughters and their husbanus after what nad transpired. While the reporter was conversing with Mr. Gordon young Sam Whitehead and his brother came along.

Young Sam's story.

Young Sam said that all the trouble in the family came in with the advent of Theodore Willetts. He told some queer stories about Willetts' financiering expertness, and that he had not a cent when he married Jane Devoe, their sister. Sam said the story about his father having run away from his wife in England was a malicious he. He came to the country when between eighteen and nineteen years of age. He married Charlotte Obert, widow of George Obert, and had all his children by her—live boys and three girls. On the Willetts and Yates party the old man claimed to have iaid out some $75,000. He is stail worth about thre h

A PAUPER'S AWFUL PATE.

Defence of Superintendent Kellock.

In your paper of the 8th inst., under the head of "A Pauper's Awful Fate," you use the term "the stony-hearted overseer of charities," and in the body of the aricle the name of George Kellock, Superintendent of Outdoor Poor, is used in a manner perintendent of Outdoor Poor, is used in a manner which, I think, is hardly fair to a man who has faithfully served for a number of years in that capacity. The body of the article, when carefully read, would impute to him no dereliction of duty, but a strict periormance of it according to law. This unfortunate "pauper" was strictly chargeable to the Commissioners of Emigration, and failed to attain their assistance by detect of his memory. I know you will gladly correct any wrong impression which these introductory words have made unfavorable to Mr. Kellock. I have known him for thirty years, and in my capacity as chairman of the Sixteenth Ward Association for the Reiler of the Poor have always found him kind, and prompt to relieve cases of distress which we have pointed out to him. This article is entirely without his knowledge.
